Objectives of the Seminar

In the past 75 years India has achieved in various sectors tackling several challenges coming from domestic as well as international market. But in the last two decades the global economy witnessed several such unprecedented changes, few of which placed the countries in front of challenges to be dealt with and few of which opened before them new opportunities to reap benefit there from. In this liberalized trade era the sustainable development of the economies get vulnerable for Global financial crisis (2008-09), oil price hike, growing inflation, COVID-19 pandemic, ongoing Russia - Ukraine war and above all climate change.

Since 1991 India is abolishing its trade barriers continuously as part of its Globalization policy. Increasing population, economic growth, expanding trade relation thus generating continuous pressure on environmental resources resulting in pollution abatement a main issue of disagreement among the trading partners. The disagreement is even more as now a days production of most manufacturing goods is spread out in different parts of the world i.e. parts of goods are produced in several countries called as Global Value Chain (GVC) or the Global Supply Chain. Once incorporated into final products they are shipped to consumers all over the world. Exports from one country to another often involve complex interactions among a variety of domestic and foreign suppliers. Even more than before, trade is determined by strategic decisions of firms to outsource, invest, and carry out activities wherever the necessary skills and materials are available at competitive cost and quality.

As the environmental degradation due to climate change is an existential threat to people's lives and is dramatically reshaping economic activity and trade it calls for collective solutions, multilateral cooperation and coherent action even more in GVC in line with the international community's wider ambitions for economic growth and sustainable development. The World Trade Report 2022: Climate Change and International Trade reviews the role of trade, trade policy and international trade cooperation in addressing climate change. It discusses how changing temperature and weather and the low-carbon transition required to contain rising greenhouse gas emissions are likely to impact their comparative advantages and ultimately the welfare of country's population. We think that a detailed discussion on these issues is the need of the hour and so this seminar is organized in expectation that it would prescribe some policies and throw some light on the possible outcomes of trade policies on society's welfare.

ABOUT THE SEMINAR

A One Day University level Seminar on “GENDER EQUALITY” was organized by the Dept. Of Education, Netaji Nagar College for Women and IQAC. Honourable Speaker, (Dr) Sridipa Sinha. Professor, Dept. of Education, University of Calcutta had delivered a lecture on the topic.

The aim of the seminar was to generate awareness and propagate knowledge about what gender is. Honourable Speaker, (Dr) Sridipa Sinha. Professor, Dept. of Education, University of Calcutta discussed the role of Gender Equality in a very innovative way through power point projection and interaction with the students. The students of Department of Education enthusiastically listened and participated in the programme.

Gender equality which is also known as sexual equality or equality of the sexes is not only a fundamental human right, but a necessary foundation for a peaceful, prosperous and sustainable society. It is the state of equal ease of access to resources and opportunities regardless of gender, including economic participation and decision-making; and the state of valuing different behaviors, aspirations and needs equally, regardless of gender.

International commitment to advance Gender Equality have brought about improvements in some areas like child marriage have declined in recent years, and women's representation in the political arena is higher than ever before. But the promise to ensure women and girls full gender equality, and guarantee removal of all legal, social and economic barriers remains unfulfilled.

Gender equality is more than just equal representation; it is strongly tied to women's rights, and often requires policy changes. On a global scale, achieving gender equality also requires eliminating harmful practices against women and girls, including sex trafficking, sexual violence, gender wage gap and other oppression strategies.

The seminar went smoothly with an interactive session at the end of the programme. Students and the speaker got interlocked in active and fruitful interaction.

Outcome / success of the programme:

The programme satisfied the objective of the celebration of 'National Nutrition Month or Poshan Maah' as students were actively participated in this programme. Both nutrition and non-nutrition background students were present to observe this programme. Teachers from various departments were also present in this celebration. We came to know about how to modify a normal diet to therapeutic diet in case of non-communicable diseases by eminent professional dietitian. Power point presentation and posters presented by the nutrition background students enhances their knowledge and technical skills at the same time these were educative for the others. Though, outreach programmes were also needed to engage the students with more activities.
